Power Seminar, Part I

It was Tom Wood who told the Chongs that in spite of doing the Freedom Seminar and the De-Imprinting Seminar, he was still trapped in the Blame Frame, BF. This could not be because of the BF language structures in his body language as they were all erased by the De-Imprinting Seminar. The only conclusion was that it was because of the BF language structures in the mind; and in using them to think, their negative impacts gave him the notice that he was still in the Blame Frame.

It was one thing to realize the nature of his problem. How to solve it, was however an entirely different matter. The Chongs in the end were forced, as a first step to think of the problem in this manner:

If this could be so then the second step was to install its alternative language structures. The first was obviously those of the Non-Aristotelian language system, \tilde{A} . The next were the Modified Meta Model, 3M and the No-Y-ian Model of Language, ~YML. Finally, for pragmatic considerations teaching the language system of Informal Logic was included in the Power Seminar.

This then is what the Power Seminar is about. There is a incredible power in these language systems that transcend the insanities of the language system of the Blame Frame, A. Anyone with a miniscum of wit will know how ill advised it is not to do this Seminar with all its 10 universal general benefits.

The Trainers

It was by accident that the Chong's turned their clinical practice into a research laboratory to explore the use of human Linguistics, Cybernetics, Systems Theory, Philosophy, Semantics, Epistemology and Ontology. In turn they became self-taught authorities in these domains. They applied these respective fields to their examination of the nature of the nature of human problem states. In doing so they were unraveling the meta-knowledge of the knowledge of a patient by which he knew to generate and live his problem state.

In turn, by their research and explorations, they were mapping out the canons and tenets of a new field of study. They named it Neuro-Semantic Programming, NSP.

For all this, they found themselves teaching across various professional professions. This in turn was to see them lecture in England, Spain, Belgium, Germany, Italy, Australia, Hong Kong, Singapore, and Malaysia.

Their articles have been published across a vast scan of professional journals in the English word.

This was said of their work:

Your work is ahead of its time.
